

"I highly recommend this course for anyone interested in communicating in a compelling and convincing way."
Paulette Jones, World Food Programme

Writing for change • A workshop in Addis Ababa by Andrew Johnston

I train people in international organizations to write more powerfully.

My writing and editing workshops are aimed at specialists who write for a wider public. They include hands-on writing and editing practice.

Workshops are limited to 15 people to give all participants a chance to share their needs and questions. I tailor each workshop by analysing samples of participants' writing.

My core workshop covers a wide range of writing situations, from reports and policy briefs to press releases and blogs. It will help you to:

- identify audiences, goals and contexts
- plan and structure documents logically and convincingly
- build clear, concise paragraphs and sentences
- choose the best words and identify words to omit
- avoid, explain or replace jargon.

9:00–17:00

December 4, 2018

One-day workshop

Eliana Hotel, Churchill Avenue
Piazza, Arada, Addis Ababa

EUR 200

To register, contact:
andrew@wordsforchange.com
or +336-6517-3966

"Out of all the courses I have done, Andrew's has had the highest impact on my career as a policy-oriented researcher."

– Alice Obrecht,
Overseas Development Institute

ANDREW JOHNSTON HAS TRAINED, EDITED AND CONSULTED FOR 120 AGENCIES IN 13 COUNTRIES. A FORMER JOURNALIST FOR THE INTERNATIONAL HERALD TRIBUNE, HE IS BASED IN PARIS.